Dear Visitors,

Learning a language opens a door. German leads to a country with 350 vocational trades, companies passing down their skills for generations and with excellent universities whose tuition fees are manageable for many.

Germany needs skilled workers across nearly every field.

The dual training system, half workplace, half classroom, sets the standard worldwide. And the journey starts here: with a language course, an exam and a conversation at one of these stands. That is why this fair exists, together with DHPS. My thanks to the 50 exhibitors from Namibia, South Africa, and Germany. They are here looking for motivated young people, offering exactly what young people need: a start, a direction, a way forward. Bringing both sides together is what we are here for.

The Goethe-Institut supports this journey. We test, we advise, we connect - that is what we do.

One question to take with you: What would be possible if you tried?

Dennis Schroeder
Director
Goethe-Institut Namibia

Dear Learners in Windhoek,
dear Parents and Visitors,

I would like to warmly welcome you to our Career Fair at the DHPS campus.

It is the second time that the Goethe-Institut Namibia and we, as a German school, are joining forces to make a contribution – a contribution that we believe truly matters.

Finding one's place in society, choosing a profession that offers more than just an income – these are challenges that concern young people and their parents today more than ever before. To find this place, it is increasingly necessary to look beyond borders. Languages – such as German – are an essential prerequisite for this. But it is just as important to being able to see opportunities: Where am I needed? What truly interests me? Where could my path lead? To help answer these questions, we are bringing people together here in Windhoek: those who are facing these decisions and those who can offer guidance and advice. With appr. 50 exhibitors from Namibia, Germany and South Africa, we present a wide range of possibilities.

On Saturday, in addition to the exhibitors, the school will host an Open Day and we will be delighted to show you what DHPS, as a German international school, provides beyond the classroom.

Take an hour or two and invest it in planning the future.
We look forward to welcoming you.
